

Action on Shared Points of Caring

This is about designing an activity by starting with what is strong in your group.

What do you collectively care about?

A large, empty rectangular box with a black border, intended for a group to write down what they collectively care about.

Recognising our Strengths

- What skills or knowledge is in this group?
- What passions or experiences can you draw from?
- What angle could you take on this given the people you have here?

Designing for Community

- Who does your activity include / exclude?
- How do you make it as accessible as possible to your desired community?
- What do you build into this event that creates curiosity, connection and community?
- How would you create opportunities for other people to bring in their skills, knowledge and experiences?
- How does this interact with the physical space it takes place in?
- How would you enable others to do something similar?
