Conclusion

Extinction Rebellion’s bridge building and collaboration with an ever-widening cohort of change movements and demographics will see the climate and democracy space transform.

We will spearhead a complete sea-change. Our work thus far has been largely characterised by raising the alarm, and while we will not cease from highlighting the catastrophe facing us, we will move into a crucial new phase.

Society increasingly understands what it wants to run away from – our task now is to set in motion a future we can run towards.

XR has not simply moved, but smashed the Overton Window; we must now seize the window of opportunity. Here comes everyone!

