

Take Action at Home

Direct action should be accessible to everybody and doesn't always need to be about taking action from on the streets. A great way to take action is to rebel from home.

X (formerly Twitter) storms

X storms are a great way to rebel from home. Create a template tweet with some of the messaging and hashtags here and encourage others to send their tweets with you all at the same time.

Emailing companies

Email the company you are targeting and explain how you would like them to change. With enough pressure from the public, companies may consider changing for the better.

Leaving reviews

Bad reviews affect company image but also are a way of making the public more aware of what these climate criminals are doing.

Blocking phone lines

Get a group together and call up the targets customer service line. This can create a block in their phone lines and stop them from calling other people to advertise their services. Remember to remain kind and respectful. We do not blame and shame individuals. The company is the real climate criminal, not the workers.

Using your voice

If you have a social media presence, use your voice to educate others on social justice and the CEE (climate and ecological emergency).

More about rebelling from home

