Rebel Agreement

All rebels are asked to follow our basic agreements. They provide a basis for trust so that both rebels and the public know what we can expect from each other.

How we take action:

- We show respect to everyone and welcome everyone.
- We commit to nonviolence, physical and verbal, and carry no weapons.
- We hold ourselves accountable for our actions.
- We bring no alcohol or illegal drugs.
- We take responsibility for ourselves and each other; we are all crew.
- We don't talk to the police unless trained to do so.
- We protect each other's identities whenever around the authorities.

Sometimes refered to as the 'Rebel Code'
Updated July 2024
